British Society of Veterinary Pathology
in association with the University of Bristol

Veterinary and Comparative Pathology Seminar Series 2014

Wednesday 21st May 2014 at 5 – 7 pm
School of Veterinary Science, University of Bristol, Langford, Bristol

2 RCPath Credits have been awarded for this seminar

Talk Synopsis:

Diagnostic cytology: "What's hip?" - Interesting cases, new trends and techniques.

A review of interesting cases, as well as trends and developments in veterinary diagnostic cytology published in the recent literature.

Seminar Moderator:

Marta Costa, DVM, MSc, MRCVS
Graduated from Lisbon in 2001, she started working in the diagnostic laboratories of the Lisbon University with a research scholarship, as well as working part time in small animal practice. In 2002 she became one of the clinical pathologists at the university up to 2007, when she completed a Masters in medical microbiology and started working as a lecturer in clinical pathology and infectious diseases at the Lusofona University. In 2009 she moved to the UK to undertake a clinical pathology residency at the University of Bristol, where she now works as clinical pathologist in the Langford Veterinary Services. She is an associate member of the Royal College of Pathologist currently working for her fellowship.

Seminar Organiser: Lucy Oldroyd